An Easter greeting

Cruse calls airport priority

Newly elected Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse said Friday he plans to renew his efforts to buy the former Lakeside Airport.

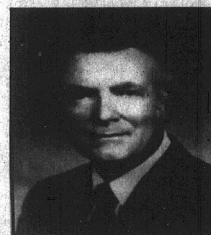

Cruse announced in November he and two other persons were pursuing purchasing the airfield, which is located near Route 111 and State Aid 55. The effort stalled when Cruse's group could not involve the Tri City Regional Port District.

Cruse's effort was made public after it was disclosed that Collinsville city officials were checking the feasibility of buying the airfield. Collinsville, however, recently dropped the project when it was determined the city could not meet the timetable the land's owner, William Nichols, has placed on deciding the land's fate.

When Collinsville stepped out of the situation, a state official indicated the state would explore buying the airport. The official, Dick Ware, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics Education and Safety in the Illinois Department of Transportation, said Thursday, however, the state would not buy the land.

The state lacks money to buy the airport, Ware said, and unless a local sponsor, such as a city or agency, steps in, the airport could not be purchased, he related.

The only source for the airport purchase available to the state is a federal fund that would provide 90 percent of the purchase price. But the process of obtaining those funds would take at least a year and a half, Ware said.

If Nichols airfield is sold for any other use than as an airport, the air space for the site will be permanently forfeited and the land could never again be made into an airport, officials have said.

But Cruse added that a top priority of his as the new Granite City mayor will be to pursue the airport purchase.

He said he plans once again to try to involve the port district in the project. The district, he said, is the ideal agency for it.

Eggstra special Easter eggs

By DAVE WHALEY
Staff writer

Those television commercials about the incredible, edible egg are right.

You can do a lot of things with eggs. And Linda Markuly Szilvasy can do a lot of beautiful things to all different kinds of eggs.

Szilvasy, of El Paso, Tex., is a Granite City native and the daughter of Helen Markuly of Granite City. She has been making and designing ornamental eggs since she was a child, when her grandmother made a Christmas ornament out of one.

Szilvasy has taken it from there. She has made about 350 eggs with all kinds of designs and patterns.

"I always painted and drew a lot," she said. "I worked mostly with regular eggs at first, but being a city girl, I didn't realize there were many different sizes of eggs available to work with."

Since then, her ornaments have been made of the eggs of a variety of animals, including chickens, swans, geese, ostriches and emus.

Her mother, naturally, is quite proud.

"She buys the eggs from all over the world," Markuly said. "She has entered some of her work in shows around the country and has won first prize several times."

Markuly has close to 40 of the eggs on display at her house, and the work done on them is obviously very intricate and delicate.

"It will sometimes take me a month to do one of the more complex designs," Szilvasy said. "Of course, I can't really spend that much time on all of them. But I often will work day and night all week long. I don't actually mean all the time, but it's a constant process. But I have a very understanding husband and no children at home."

Markuly said her daughter does most of her work at night, because the telephone doesn't bother her as much then.

Some of the eggs appear rather basic, nothing more than a little paint and some designs. But others are intricate pieces of art.

One egg can be opened up three ways, much like a peeled banana, to reveal a tiny figure of a woman.

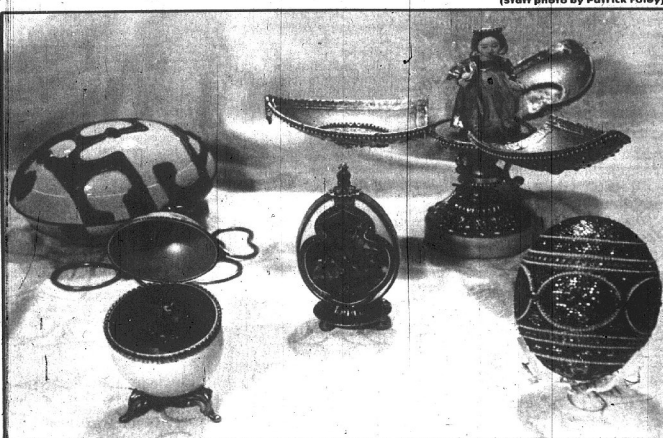

Szilvasy also took a swan egg and painted a figure of Christ on it.

For more practical purposes, Szilvasy took an ostrich egg and made a purse out of it.

There is also an egg she has transformed into a music box.

"When I got that one, I wondered what the little switch on the side was," Markuly said. "Then I turned it, and it plays 'My Funny Valentine.'"

Szilvasy has also invented a (See Eggstra, Page 7A)

Kissinger asked FBI assistance

WASHINGTON — Throughout his years in the publicity spotlight, Henry Kissinger has learned to grin and bear the barbs and ridicule of his many critics. But internal FBI documents reveal that the former secretary of state asked the FBI to investigate the verbal abuse heaped on him by supporters of one indefatigable opponent: Lyndon LaRouche.

Jack Anderson

After years of stings and jabs — including one airport confrontation with LaRouche supporters that led to the trial and acquittal of Kissinger's wife, Nancy, on an assault charge — Kissinger wrote to his friend William Webster, the FBI director. He asked that the G-men look into the legality of his tormentors' activities.

In a "Dear Bill" letter in 1982, Kissinger wrote: "I want to make clear that I do not ask the FBI to interfere in any manner with LaRouche's First Amendment rights even when they are exercised in a scurrilous and obscene manner. The LaRouche campaign against me, however, seems to go far beyond free speech."

The charges aimed at Kissinger over the years by LaRouche supporters ranged from drug smuggling to homosexuality. But a LaRouche spokesman who examined the FBI documents told our associate Tony Capaccio that their quarrel with Kissinger was strictly over policy matters. "We want Kissinger's political career to be over," he said.

The LaRouche spokesman denied that the campaign against Kissinger ever strayed over the line into illegal harassment. As for Kissinger's request for an FBI investigation, the LaRouche aide said: "He got downright paranoid."

Kissinger has refused to comment, but sources close to him said that the "intense verbal and physical harassment" of a few years ago has subsided considerably.

Kissinger first wrote to Webster in August 1982, thanking the FBI boss for forwarding a LaRouche filer that attacked Kissinger. Webster wrote to Kissinger's attorney the next month, saying: "I certainly can understand Dr. Kissinger's concern over the persistence which these individuals have displayed in their campaign against him." He also noted the ex-secretary's dilemma: to take legal action against the LaRouche forces "would give them the forum they appear to be seeking."

But the campaign continued, and in November 1982, Kissinger asked Webster for an FBI investigation. Within a month he was informed that the Justice Department could find no civil-rights basis for action against LaRouche.

The FBI did suggest three possible areas of illegality, though: interstate harassment by telephone; funding of LaRouche by hostile intelligence agencies, and threats or accusations by mail.

Apparently none of these possibilities was pursued by the federal agency's jurisdiction.

The FBI finally closed its investigation in 1983, without turning up evidence of any prosecutable offense.

TAKE THAT HILL: The Pentagon is preparing a booklet that may strike old-timers as reminiscent of the World War II "Know Your Enemy" series. It will be distributed to program managers who must testify on expensive weapons and is intended, according to defense officials, to "foster a more effective working relationship" between Congress and the military.

In Pentagonese, the booklet will outline "procedures used by congressional committees and staffs when interfacing with program management staffs, i.e., on-site visits and hearings on the hill." In plain English, some intrepid Daniels will be instructed on how to behave in the lions' den.

WATFUTAL: Every working day, Congress engages in a time-consuming ritual of approving the journal of the previous day's proceedings. During 1984, for example, the approval took more than 2,500 congressional member-hours.

Rep. Harry Reid, D-Nev., suspects that this is a device used by members who didn't come out too well in the previous day's debate and who simply want to inconvenience the rest of the members. But when Reid tried to address the problem it touched off — what else? — a loud debate that lasted nearly an hour.

Home computer boom fizzled dud

The boom in home computers hasn't materialized, and one of America's most glamorous industries is running out of steam. There is a lot of finger-pointing as to who is responsible. The retailers blame the manufacturers for advertising products that do not exist. The manufacturers fault their sales forces for failing to move the machines out of the warehouse. The salespeople blame the market research departments for predicting everyone in America was dying for a home computer, and the market research people say the public lied to them.

Applegate, a market researcher, showed me a printout of the survey his firm had taken 12 months ago.

"We asked 50,000 people if they would buy a home computer in the next year and 49,910 said they would. Then we asked them why and 67 percent said to balance their checkbooks, and 38 percent said so their kids could someday go to the moon."

On the basis of these figures we predicted that there would soon be a computer in every home. When our forecasts proved too optimistic we decided to find out why.

"We discovered some interesting things. For example, we found the people who couldn't balance their checkbooks were too stupid to learn how to use a computer to do it for them."

"And it turned out the ones who said they were going to get them for their kids decided to use the money to buy a video recording machine for themselves instead."

"Too bad they didn't say that the first time around."

"We also discovered consumers who had owned a machine were telling everyone that computers were not user friendly."

When we asked exactly what they meant by that, they said every time they did taxes on one it always resolved a dispute in favor of the IRS. They felt since they owned the computer, the least it could do is be on their side."

"The 'new direction' — what the president calls 'The Second American Revolution' — involves turning — however gradually — from left to right."

We are turning from a caretaker government to a servant-of-the-people government. Up this road to the right are less taxes and less complicated taxes, less government handouts and more opportunities for individual self-help, less government debt and less interference with individuals' rights to run their own railroads and to pray in school.

With government ruling less, spending less, hiring less...

With individual Americans producing more, doing more, being more.

Half a century ago President FDR painstakingly changed our nation's direction away from tyranny by the select to greater government administration, regulation and restraint.

Until Big Government became an unwieldy giant debilitated by its own overweight, threatened with insolvency.

Turning away from that will take dexterity and patience — but we can if we will.

"Didn't they feel a computer's graphics capability made it a valuable tool in the home."

"We asked people about that and they said for the first week they enjoyed cutting up a pie into equal shares, but by the second week the thrill was gone. As for charts — it's amazing how little they mean to most households. I interviewed one man who kept putting them up in the kitchen to illustrate his wife's productivity, or lack of it, and she sued him and his computer for mental cruelty."

I asked Applegate if he thought the home market for computers had been saturated.

"It has until we come up with new uses for them. We must prove to the consumer that a computer can do the job easier than he can. For instance, one father we talked to said he would buy a computer if it had the ability to call every house in the neighborhood on Friday night and locate his high school-age daughter when she was supposed to be home. Another person said she would buy a computer if it were programmed to answer all 'junk telephone calls' and short-circuit the machines making them."

"Another person said he wanted a computer that could cripple the department store computer which was dunning him for a bill. The biggest reason people want computers now is to incapacitate and kill other computers that are threatening people's lives. I have recommended that home computer companies in their new advertising campaigns stress the 'hate' factor that people feel for the big machines. If we can persuade Americans they need computers in the home to defend themselves against corporate computers, we'll be back in business."

Applegate's research revealed that one of the reasons home computer sales had fallen off is that they had no sex appeal. Women hated the look of them in the room. So after a month, the majority of machines wound up in a closet, usually covered with someone's Nebraska jacket.

"How do you propose to get women to accept a computer in the home?" I asked.

"By getting Geraldine Ferraro to do a TV commercial saying it's the only thing that keeps her family together."

Woman opposes seat belt law

To the Editor:

I have been reading so much about the seat belt law. I want to say my piece. When they first started talking about seat belts, I was hit in the back of my car. The first thing I was asked was did I have my seat belt on? I said no. They told me it was a good thing.

Now they want me to put my seat belt on. In no way will I wear my seat belt. I am an old lady and have lived this long without them and will live longer without a seat belt on. I think that is infringing on my rights and I don't like it.

This is supposed to be a free country.

Students against drinking

To the Editor:

Students at Granite City High School are concerned about teenage drinking in our community. We are even more concerned about anyone who drinks and then drives.

We are aware that automobile accidents which are the result of driving while intoxicated are the number one killer of people under 21.

Although we realize it would be impossible to stop all students from drinking, we feel we must make an attempt to stop them from driving after drinking.

As young adults who are aware of this life threatening situation, we have decided to ask our community to help make this a manner of concern for everyone by supporting our efforts to start a SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) organization in our high school.

Gilbert Walmesley, principal, has agreed to let the Board of Education to approve our organization and Ron Dillard, driver education chairman of the high school, has agreed to sponsor our organization once approval has been granted.

We hope for our initial activities to include:

1. Bringing Robert Anastas, founder of SADD, to our high school to address students and adults in regard to SADD objectives and start up procedures.

2. Safe transportation guarantee.

A. On prom night and every Friday evening during the school year, we will set up an escort service operating out of our school cafeteria.

B. The SADD group will advertise a hot line number in our cafeteria. Any student who needs a ride because of drinking will be able to call and receive a safe ride home from a cooperating teacher or parent.

3. Work on other projects to create community commitment and awareness.

4. Sponsor a student-parent contract drive where all family members agree not to drink and drive.

If you or an organization to which you belong would be willing to help finance the efforts of students against driving drunk, please send donations to Students Against Driving Drunk in care of Ron Dillard, Granite City High School.

Correction

The Press-Record inadvertently put the wrong headline on an April 4 story concerning Neal Howard, 32, and Donna Howard, 33, of 4516 Lake Drive. The headline should have read: "Jail, probation ordered for cannibal charges."

In the same issue, the wrong headline appeared over an article concerning Robert Thompson, 22, of 2026 Washington Ave. The headline should have read: "Jail term, probation ordered for retail theft."

The newspaper regrets the errors, which resulted from transposing the two headlines.

Granite City Council has no control of hall

By SUSANNE INDELICATO
Staff writer

Granite City aldermen have no control over the use of the Granite City Township Hall, according to a legal opinion informally submitted by township attorney William Schooley Sr.

Speaking to the council Wednesday night, Schooley said that the council's rights and responsibilities as a town board are to audit bills as incurred by Township Supervisor Nelson Hagnauer, to appoint an attorney, to establish compensation for some township employees and to set a yearly budget.

"The supervisor has the obligation and duty to run the township," Schooley said. "It is the supervisor's right to offer this building for use by groups."

Schooley indicated he would outline the town board's rights and responsibilities in writing and present the list to board members.

Alderman Sam Whitmer, who presided over the meeting in the absence of Mayor Paul Schuler, asked Schooley to present the rules to aldermen after members of the Granite City Council of Seniors complained that the township hall is not accessible to senior citizens. The complaint was made in a letter read to the aldermen at the March 19 meeting.

In that letter, Council of Seniors President Juanita Crawley said the group was refused a request to book the hall for a bingo game in March. She requested an explanation.

Aldermen approved a motion urging representatives of the seniors and Hagnauer to meet.

Crawley told a reporter that she had sent a registered letter to Hagnauer, requesting such a meeting, but that Hagnauer has not yet contacted her to set up the meeting.

Discussion of the matter resumed when Alderman Woodrow "Woody" Moad issued an apology to the Council of Seniors.

Alderman Jake Varadani added, "I would like to stress once more that nothing bad was said against the township supervisor, and nothing bad was said about the programs offered to the senior citizens. She (Crawley) did not say anything in bad taste."

Moad asked Schooley whether the city council could form a committee to regulate the use of the township hall. Schooley said the council could not.

In other action, council members approved ordinances to provide two-hour parking on Fehling Road and to remove a fire hydrant from the corner of Sunset Drive and Wilson Avenue. Officials said the hydrant had been placed in the wrong location.

Bids to repair sewer breaks at 4047 Stearns Ave. and 1932 Joy Ave. also were approved. The work will cost the city an estimated $185,220. City officials indicated that $260,000 is available for repairing sewer breaks.

Venice officials to take office April 16

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Staff writer

Third Circuit Court Judge William E. Johnson has been invited to administer the oath of office to Venice city officials, all of whom were returned to office in last Tuesday's election.

Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols said at Wednesday's city council session that he will ask Judge Johnson to "do the honors" at a swearing-in ceremony at the April 16 meeting.

Judge Johnson was administered the oath of office by the Venice mayor in ceremonies Dec. 3 at the Madison County Courthouse, it was noted at the meeting.

The historic occasion, which began Judge Johnson's second term on the court, marked the first time a black elected official administered the oath to a circuit court judge in Madison County.

A 6,000 lumen vapor streetlight and pole will be installed at the rear of 714 Brown Street. The action was authorized upon adoption of a resolution, introduced by 2nd Ward Alderman Hank A. Svezia, chairman of the ordinance committee.

Removal of one streetlight to illuminate a "pitch dark area" in the 1000 block at the rear of Market and Bissell streets, 4th Ward Alderman Victor Valentine Sr. stated. The site was referred to the streetlighting committee for inspection.

Third Ward Alderman John Ervin reported some progress is being made by the railroad on road repairs at the Market Street rail crossing, a situation discussed at the council's last two or three sessions.

A dinner invitation extended by a Venice businessman to council members and other elected officials was reported by the mayor.

In response to a question from Earl Hogan, a Venice resident, concerning what action on a vacant dwelling in the 200 block of Kerr Street is being taken, Venice City Attorney Lawrence Hartman reported a complaint already is on file with the Third Judicial Circuit Court. "The question continues to be who owns the property," Hartman said. Hogan contended the house is not boarded up and is presenting problems.

Hogan also brought to the council's attention conditions at four other abandoned dwellings. Two are located on Weber Street and the other properties are at Second and Abbott streets and in the 1000 block of Third Street, he said.

Lois Wilson, a Neighborhood Watch leader, expressed appreciation to city officials for their support and attendance at the groundbreaking ceremonies last Saturday near the McKinley Bridge.

The event marked the installation of the first access route sign, which notes the community is protected by law enforcement officers working in cooperation with citizens.

Hydrant tests planned

Starting Monday, April 8, and continuing for two months, the Illinois American Water Co. will test all of the fire hydrants within Granite City, Madison, Venice and Namekino Township.

Water pressure readings and gallons-per-minute flows will be calculated and documented at this time.

These tests enable the company to determine the condition and reliability of each hydrant in the system.

Flushing of hydrants requires huge amounts of water and there will be discoloration in tap water in the immediate area of the flushings.

The water is safe to drink or use, and will return to clean and normal within a few hours, a spokesman said.

Flushing and testing schedule will start in the downtown Granite City area and will progress toward Granite City Steel and then to the Tri-City Park area.

As the program continues, the water company will announce each area that is to be tested until the program is completed.

Q: In order to make some local investments, I have been seriously considering becoming a limited partner in one or two businesses which I believe have potential. My problem is this area is entirely new to me. Can you briefly explain exactly what my role as a limited partner would be. I think I have a fairly good idea, but I'm not entirely sure. A: The limited partnership investment is, in fact, the form which most tax shelters take — which is a benefit in itself. A general partner supplies the expertise and ability to operate a particular business — such as real estate or oil and gas — and a group of limited partners invest the capital. Usually, the partnership itself pays no taxes. Instead, the investors — as limited partners — report their pro rata share of partnership profits, losses and deductions on their individual returns. Your banker would be happy to give you additional information and advice concerning the benefits and pitfalls of limited partnerships.

Wolf advocates infrastructure legislation

Legislation aimed at revitalizing Illinois' decaying roads, sewers and bridges has unanimously passed the House Transportation Committee. State Rep. Sam Wolf (D-Granite City) is sponsor of the measure.

House Bill 24 creates the Infrastructure Revolving Loan Fund to provide up to $151 million annually to the state under legislation now pending in Congress.

"If we hope to provide a healthy climate for economic redevelopment in this state, we must take aggressive action toward upgrading our crumbling infrastructure," Wolf said. "True economic development in this state cannot be attained without major rehabilitation of our infrastructure system."

"Illinois' crumbling roads and highways can no longer be ignored," he continued. "Statistics issued recently by the Road Information Program indicate that the 'Magnificent Miles of Illinois' are scarred with over 965,000 potholes."

Under Wolf's proposal, the Illinois Development Finance Authority would be empowered to receive and distribute funds made available through the National Infrastructure Act.

Local governments would have access to low-interest, 20-year loans to supplement bond funds or state and federal grants to cover project costs.

"We must make a comprehensive effort to resolve the infrastructure crisis in Illinois if we hope to enjoy corporate and residential expansion," Wolf said.

"By providing assistance to local governments in financing much-needed repairs, we will foster significant economic benefits and will improve the quality of life in Illinois."

Courses consolidated at schools

The Granite City School Board April 3 made some program changes for the 1985-86 school year.

Half-hour foreign language classes in the junior and senior high schools were dropped, and a half-hour career education course was dropped at the senior high school.

The latter class will be consolidated with a consumer home management course.

The changes were made now so student schedules could be altered, staff realignments made and class sizes determined immediately.

The district can then proceed with teacher placement and recall of necessary personnel at the secondary level, a spokesman said.

Dr. Purdes guest at exhibition

Dr. Alice Purdes, a teacher at Venice-Lincoln Technical Center, recently was the guest of Dr. Catherine McHugh and the SIU Alumni Association as the group toured the "Te Maori" art exhibit at the St. Louis Art Museum. The exhibit will be on view there until May 26.

The Maori people were the original inhabitants of New Zealand and make up about 10 percent of the present population of 3.1 million people. The art exhibit of the Maori people includes sculptures from 14 inches to 12 feet 4 inches high. Most of the subjects were sculpted from hardwoods, whalebone, jade, basalt and other durable materials.

Many objects have religious connotations. Some wooden masks and figures, the Maori believe, literally house the spirit of the ancestor represented by the object.

Because the "Te Maori" exhibit is the first time the artworks have been shown outside of New Zealand, the Maori people are careful to protect the spirits of their ancestors and their gods.

MAORI GREETING. Dr. Alice Purdes touches noses twice in the traditional Maori manner with one of the hosts of the "Te Maori" exhibit at the St. Louis Art Museum. The Maori believe that God created everything in pairs; thus, they believe they must touch noses twice for their greeting to be complete.

Double-cross? Warfield fumes about 'bull' report

By SUSAN SIGNAIGO-WEICH

The word "double-cross" is being associated with the campaign Madison County Democratic Central Committee Chairman Mac Warfield launched against Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler in the city's mayoral race.

The election resulted in a victory for Von Dee Cruse, Granite City Township assessor, and a virtual tie for second place between Warfield and Schuler. Warfield's edge over Schuler was 11 votes.

According to reports in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Schuler struck a "deal" with Warfield, allegedly vowing to support Warfield for the county chairmanship in exchange for a promise that Warfield would not run in the mayoral election.

These reports have been refuted personally by Warfield and by Schuler supporters.

According to Warfield, there was no deal. "That's bull," Warfield said of the allegation.

Warfield supported his statement by pointing out Schuler is not a Democratic precinct committeeman, therefore he has no vote in the election of their county chair.

He also added the alleged deal would not make sense when one realizes the chairmanship is related to the Democratic Party and the election is a non-partisan affair.

Warfield added the only political comment he made concerning the election was he would back Nelson "Nellie" Hagnauer in his bid for re-election as the Granite City Township supervisor.

"He (Hagnauer) asked me if I had his support and I replied, 'I've never been against you, have I?'" Warfield said. "But this had nothing to do with my support or non-support of Schuler."

Warfield said he was angered by the report.

"I don't like being called a double-crosser," he said.

Schuler could not be reached for comment on the allegation, but his campaign manager Don Parente spoke in his behalf.

"There was no deal made, whatsoever," Parente said. "The mayor had nothing to do with Warfield being named the chairman. I don't know if the mayor even talked to any of the precinct committeemen about their support of Warfield."

Parente added committeemen supporting Warfield were the same people who were supporting Schuler for mayor. He said no one knew Warfield was going to run for mayor at the time of his election as chairman.

"I don't know where this is coming from," Parente said of the report. "Nobody has contacted me from the Globe and no one from the Globe has contacted the mayor (Schuler) either."

At least not to my knowledge.

Another Schuler supporter, 2nd Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer, said the allegation was "absolutely not true."

Whitmer did say, though, he was surprised when Warfield announced he would back Nelson "Nellie" Hagnauer in his bid for re-

Warfield got his petition to run for mayor, he was in Warfield's office at the street department. Warfield told him he would not run against Schuler.

"This is no bull — this is true," Whitmer said.

Whitmer said Warfield's decision to run against Schuler guarantees Warfield will run into a "hornet's nest" if Warfield attempts to be re-elected as the Democratic committeeman next year.

"There are plenty of people who are madder than a hornet over this thing," Whitmer said of Warfield's mayoral bid.

Warfield disagreed with Whitmer. "I think I'm still a strong Democrat," Warfield said.

Mayor-elect Cruse said Warfield's bid for mayor will have little effect on the solidarity of the county's Democratic Party.

"The Madison (County) Democratic Party has been split for some time," he said.

Cruse said he thinks the party split began when Chris Costiff gave up his chairmanship.

"Whoever took over was going to be a compromise chairman," Cruse said.

Apparently the divided factions were able to agree on the election of Warfield. Cruse said he thinks, however, there is a battle brewing for the future chairmanship.

Warfield's actions against Schuler may be used as a reason to vote against Warfield if he seeks another term as the party's chairman, Cruse said. But he added, "This was going to happen whether or not Warfield ran in the election."

NEWS OF THE VICTORY. Madison Mayor-elect John Bellcoff, on left, announces the vote totals to the crowd of New Life Party supporters early Wednesday morning. The party ticket swept the citywide election Tuesday night. Bellcoff will take office during the first meeting of the city council in May. (Staff photo by Patrick Foley)

A look at the election . . .

A heavy-weight in the Granite City political arena, Paul Schuler, was defeated by not one, but two opponents in Tuesday's election.

Two theories are offered concerning the outcome of the race.

The first premise is backed by Mac Warfield, and two of Schuler's supporters, Don Parente and 2nd Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer.

According to Whitmer, there are two Democratic camps in Granite City government.

One faction is known loosely as the "city club." This organization includes Warfield and Schuler.

The other group, which Whitmer called the Partney machine, were staunch supporters of former Mayor Don Partney. Von Dee Cruse is the new leader of this camp, according to Whitmer.

Whitmer said although the city club faction has been strong in the past 12 years, during Schuler's terms, the Partney machine has been nothing to sneeze at. It too has a good number of supporters.

The reasoning for the election results is quite simple, according to Whitmer. Warfield and Schuler split the city club vote, enabling the Partney machine to get Cruse elected, he said.

Although this explanation sounds reasonable, another guide to the election results has been offered by Cruse.

The Cruse theory agrees there was a split vote, but it maintains the votes were taken away from Cruse, instead of Schuler.

Schuler's votes couldn't be taken, Cruse contends, because in his 12 years as mayor, he has made a lot of contacts and helped a lot of citizens. He and Warfield could not make a dent in these votes, he said.

People who did not support Schuler were people who were unhappy with the present administration, Cruse said. He added these people are the same group

Whitmer called the Partney machine.

Those who were unhappy with the current government would have all voted for him, Cruse said, had not Warfield run. But these persons instead divided themselves between Cruse and Warfield.

Cruse said he would have defeated Schuler by a greater margin had not Warfield won.

Warfield said he would have defeated both Cruse and Schuler had he more time to campaign. He said he would have defeated either of the candidates on a one-to-one basis.

Whitmer said he is not sure who would have won had not Warfield run. Whitmer said the notion Cruse would defeat Schuler had they run unopposed was "foolish thought."

Whichever of the theories is the most accurate, one thing is clear: there were as many reasons for how the vote turned out as there were voters in Granite City Tuesday.

Students to be fingerprinted

In the past two years more than 6,000 elementary students in Granite City were fingerprinted under an all volunteer child identification program. The Granite City Board of Education has again given Girl Scout leaders approval to continue this program and print the kindergarten classes and any new elementary students in the district.

This free program is designed to assist law enforcement agencies in finding and identifying missing children. The program is voluntary. Participating children must have "written consent" forms signed by their parents or legal guardians. A copy of the "identification card" will go back to the parent or guardian and, if the parent or guardian has given his consent, a copy will be retained with the child's school records.

It is being recommended that parents consider the fingerprints the key item in their child's identification packet. The packet should also include dental charts, a recent photograph, a list of distinguishable features such as birthmarks and medical records, especially if x-rays have been taken, a spokesman said. Once completed, the packet could be used to aid law enforcement agencies in locating and identifying a youngster should he or she be determined to be missing.

If a child was not fingerprinted in last year's identification program, parents may contact their elementary school principal and request the identification forms.

Girl Scout leader volunteers can contact Mary Brown at 931-6600 for more information about times and dates for the fingerprinting.

Venice firefighters return to tire fire

Venice firefighters were called on three different occasions to a blaze involving a large pile of tires and rubbish on Slough Road. After firemen responded at 11:10 p.m. Wednesday, it was found that arson may have occurred at a point where a firebreak was established from a previous fire.

Again at 8:10 a.m. Thursday, firemen answered a call to the same area when unoccupied hogpens in the vicinity became endangered because of a flare-up. They remained at the scene until 9:55 a.m.

FIRE burns out of control.

Fire burns warehouse

By PATRICIA WASHINGTON
Staff writer

Firefighters battled almost six hours Thursday night to contain a fire at the Armour Packing Co. warehouse at National City Stockyards.

The 100-year-old building was destroyed as firemen tried to keep flames from spreading to nearby buildings.

According to stockyards General Manager James Whittick, the fire started between 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. and quickly enveloped the building.

While no cause has been determined, Whittick believes the fire started when employees who were cleaning in the area began burning some debris.

Firefighters from the National City Fire Department answered a call for a brush fire about 5:30 p.m.

According to a fireman on the scene, they returned a half hour later because the fire had spread to the warehouse.

By 8:30 p.m. flames had engulfed the building. A solid wall of black smoke and bright orange flames could be seen miles away.

Firemen from 11 departments battled the blaze, but efforts were checked by winds and a dwindling water supply.

At one time a water main burst preventing water from being pumped to one side of the building.

An East St. Louis trucking company sent two tankers with water in case the supply ran short.

Whittick said the most pressing concern was to contain the fire before it spread to other buildings housing the water and electrical generators.

Early reports indicated there were chemicals stored in the buildings, but Whittick said there were no chemicals on the premises.

"If there can be said that there is a good time for something like this to happen then this is it. We won't be held liable for someone else's merchandise."

"I have to give credit to the firemen. They did a terrific job out here, it's just amazing the way they performed," Whittick said.

The remains of the building collapsed at approximately 11 p.m.

Whittick said no cost estimate for damages had been prepared, but the building was insured.

Among fire departments responding were those from Granite City, Long Lake and Venice.

The Granite City Fire Department responded at 9 p.m. and worked there for four hours.

The Venice Fire Department arrived at about 9 p.m. and left at 3 a.m. A large fire truck and six firefighters worked at the scene.

The Long Lake Fire Department sent about eight men to the scene with their 3,000 gallon tanker truck. These men worked for two-and-a-half hours.

AREA FIREMEN were on the scene.

6 oppose rate hike

Six intervenors have submitted testimony opposing Illinois Power's request for a $137 million electric rate increase.

Much of the opposition focuses on IP's request for $610 million worth of "construction work in progress" to be included in its rate base, an accounting tool that permits a utility to charge ratepayers for a plant under construction.

The commerce commission already has granted IP $625 million for CWIP to help the Decatur-based company finance its Clinton nuclear power plant.

The six intervenor groups presenting witnesses are: the Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation representing low-income customers in IP's service territory; the Governor's Office of Consumer Services; a group of industrial customers in the territory; the state attorney general's office; the U.S. Air Force (for Scott Air Force Base near Belleville); and the Citizens Utility Board.

Witnesses for the groups, as well as staff from the Illinois Commerce Commission, will be cross-examined by Illinois Power attorneys.

IP witnesses already have offered their testimony and have been questioned. Major opponents of including CWIP in the rate base are Robert Logan, an independent economic and financial consultant from Sacramento, Calif., who represents the Governor's Office of Consumer Services, and David Kamerschen, a professor of economics at the University of Georgia representing the attorney general's office.

Logan argued in his prepared testimony that no additional CWIP should be approved because it subsidizes expansion and "is incompatible with the basic objectives of regulation and control of monopoly power."

He also said that the Clinton plant, now about 92 percent complete, is "an unnecessary addition and that a good portion of the costs incurred are and will be imprudently incurred in the sense that they are not for the benefit of the ratepayer."

He said IP wants CWIP "only to maintain the luxury of a high bond rating" and claims many other utilities in the midst of building programs are operating with lower bond ratings.

If more CWIP is given IP, Logan argues, ratepayers should receive something in return, either a limit on Clinton expenditures that ratepayers would have to finance, a phase-in rate increases once the plant goes into operation (an option already being considered by the ICC), an incentive program to encourage IP to complete the plant on time, or operational incentives once the Clinton plant is on line.

IP consistently has argued that CWIP will, in the long run, save money for customers.

Last year, the company estimated savings of $201 million if all of the CWIP it has requested was allowed.

But Raymond Czahar, a financial analyst for the California Public Utility Commission and a witness on behalf of the governor's office, said a current IP ratepayer would have to live in IP's Downstate service territory for 14 years about half the anticipated life of a nuclear plant, to recover the additional rate charges related to CWIP.

Kamerschen also argued that IP should receive no additional construction work in progress. He said including CWIP in the company's rate base means less risk to Illinois Power and its investors, than to the company's ratepayers.

He also estimated that IP customers would be in for big rate increases as the Clinton plant comes on line, adding up to about 72.2 percent between July 1985 and July 1988.

Kamerschen said use of CWIP helps to minimize "rate shock," an otherwise enormous rate increase that would go into effect as soon as the plant went into operation and was included in the company's rate base.

But he said other methods could be used to reduce rate shock, including phasing in rate increases over a longer period of time and giving customers lower rates when Clinton goes on line in exchange for the CWIP costs today.

Like Logan, he said CWIP places a risk on ratepayers that normally is "carried by investors in unregulated markets. Raising electric rates before a plant is completed is not a good regulatory practice even from the standpoint of mitigating future rate shock."

A rate analyst for the Air Force, Jack Gaines of Atlanta, contended that IP's proposed rate increases of 23.8 percent for residential customers, 17.2 percent for commercial customers, 16.3 percent for industrial customers and 17.4 percent for Scott Air Force Base — should be revised to more accurately reflect the cost of providing service.

Gaines suggested that residential rates should increase 28.9 percent and that other classifications should be as follows if the commission wants to award IP a $137 million rate increase: commercial, 15 percent; industrial, 11.8 percent; and Scott Air Force Base, 9 percent.

Cruse claims airport priority

much time as the district to pursue the project, and the city's financial situation is not as strong as the district's, Cruse said.

Because a district goal is to strengthen Granite City's industrial base, it has an obligation to look into the project, Cruse commented.

Revising and expanding the airport would create jobs and would act as a magnet to bring light industry to this area, he said.

"I think we need an airport. It would be a big mistake to abandon this project," Cruse asserted. He said he hopes to have more "pull" with the port district now that he is mayor.

When he presented the idea to the district in November, it was in his capacity as Granite City Township assessor. As mayor, Cruse noted, he appoints one member to the port authority's seven-member board.

Still, the final word on the fate of the former airport will rest with the owner, William Nichols.

Contacted Friday, Nichols reiterated his desire to sell the land this year. At age 68, Nichols said, he cannot afford to wait long to receive money for the land.

With Collinsville out of the picture as a buyer, he said he has been planning to sell the land as a single parcel for industrial development by the end of the year. Nichols said he is waiting until Interstate 255 reaches the site before selling the land.

But he said he would certainly listen to what Cruse has to say. If the process of buying the property for an airport can be quickened, then he would consider selling the land as an airport.

But he noted that when he had contacted the port district before, the agency had flatly turned down the project. Nichols said chances of the land being preserved as an airport are "lousy."

Cruse, though, was hopeful he would be able to get Nichols to give him a chance to buy the airport.

A proposal will have to be put together by Nichols' deadline, Cruse said, to show that a serious effort is being made.

The mayor-elect said he understood Nichols' desire to resolve the situation with the land.

"If everybody's dragging their feet, I can see the position he's in," Cruse said. "If we can make it happen, I feel confident he'll (Nichols) work with us."

Eggstra special eggs

special hardener which makes working with the fragile eggs a little less dangerous.

"One thing I would like to mention is that it is a federal offense to go around picking up eggs just anywhere you might see them," Silvasly said. "With the exception of the starling and the English sparrow, you can't do that. They all come from a hatchery, and some of the bigger ones might sell for $10 or $15. I got an Emu egg once for $22."

Silvasly enters her eggs in art shows all around the country.

"One of the bigger ones is coming up in Dallas in early June," she said. "They usually have representatives there from every state, so it's quite competitive."

And the art of 'egging' is spreading all over the world. My book is available now in England and Australia."

Silvasly's book is "The Jeweled Egg," billed as a comprehensive guide to the design and creation of decorated eggs. The book has about 150 illustrations and describes all the equipment needed and tells how the designs are done.

"This book was written to provide all egggers, beginning and advanced, with a handbook of design and process," she said. "It isn't a book of egg designs to copy. Instead, it is a book of principles to guide egggers to do their own thing with confidence and good taste."

Tradition is associated with this holiday, and many took the opportunity to make dozens of cookies for...

Easter

LINDA DOHNAL carefully places icing on the cookie

ANNIE AMISH with final product

It's that time of year again. Easter is one of the most important holidays of the year. Although it probably lags behind Christmas as far as promotion and commercialism is concerned, the significance of the day to Christians is tremendous.

But as important as the "true meaning" of Easter is, there is still time for the lighter side. Anyone who got a bundle of goodies in their Easter basket this morning will tell you that.

Maybe you got some colored eggs in your basket that looked a little like some of these made by children at Yobbyland Child Care Center last Wednesday.

Owners Cynthia and Larry Yobby and Director Kim O'Dell had 25 kids preparing all kinds of goodies for Easter Sunday.

Things got a little hectic with the children running back and forth between dyeing eggs and making Easter cookies. But considering there were eggs, dye, cookie batter, coconut and jelly beans involved in the process, the center was surprisingly clean as the little chefs went about preparing for the big day without making too much of a mess.

Yobbyland Child Care Center is located at 922 Iowa St. in Madison.

Magic House in Kirkwood adding 3,000 square feet; will look like typical carriage house

At The Magic House, 516 S. Kirkwood Road, St. Louis, a 3,000-square-foot addition is under construction. The addition was designed by Thomas Hilton Cohen, architect, and will be built in the Victorian style of the original house which was constructed in 1901 for the A.G. Edwards family.

The addition will connect to the east side of the house, and from the exterior will resemble a turn-of-the-century carriage house. The interior will contain 1,500 square feet of exhibit space, a birthday party room, special event area, additional restrooms and a workshop.

As part of the construction, a time capsule is planned for an interior wall of the addition. To decide what the time capsule should contain, The Magic House is holding a time capsule contest which is open to students, 18 years and under.

To enter, participants must submit a list of eight items that best represent America in 1985. The lists can be submitted by groups, as well as individuals, and must be received by April 30. Entries should be mailed to: Time Capsule Contest, 516 S. Kirkwood Road, St. Louis, Mo. 63122. In the case of duplicate lists, the earliest entry will be named the winner. The Magic House will provide all the items on the winning list to be inserted in the time capsule. If an item is perishable or if the cost of an item is prohibitive, the museum reserves the right to submit a reasonable facsimile of the item.

The winner of the time capsule contest will be announced on May 1. He or she will receive a $100 prize, which will be awarded at a time capsule burial ceremony planned for late spring. At that time, items on the winning list will be placed in the capsule and sealed. A plaque commemorating the event will be placed outside the time capsule.

The Magic House is a not-for-profit organization which has been self-supporting through admission fees since opening to the public in 1979. The hands-on museum has become a favorite attraction in St. Louis and has gained nationwide attention as a model for other communities wishing to start a children's museum.

The Magic House will be celebrating its millionth visitor this spring. Admission is $2.50, and $2 for children under 12 years of age. Group rates are available. Public hours are: Tuesdays through Thursdays, 3 to 6 p.m.; Fridays, 3 to 9 p.m.; Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sundays, noon to 6 p.m.

Granite City Press-Record/Journal Sunday

They're glorious, a favorite for breakfast, lunch or supper — they're eggs

Eggs, glorious eggs! Their versatility makes them a year-round favorite, not only for breakfast, but for brunch, lunch, even a light supper.

Their subtle flavor is key to their chameleon-like character, as they star in dishes both savory and sweet.

Such standard fare as hard-boiled and scrambled eggs only begin to scratch the surface of egg cookery, which includes dishes as elegant as a soufflé, as hearty as a Spanish omelette.

Of course, eggs are an important ingredient in a slew of desserts, most apparently the sweet soufflés and meringues, though such unexpected combinations as dessert omelettes filled with preserves are intriguing as well as satisfying.

The recipes below were chosen to reflect the scope of egg cookery, with special emphasis on the lighter dishes, many using the fresh-from-the-garden ingredients which dominate spring and summer menus.

Many egg dishes are a breeze in a food processor, as proved by the following recipes for Zucchini Flan and Cheese Soufflé, both reproduced from Abby Mandel's Cuisinart® Classroom (Cuisinart Cooking Club/Harper Colophon Books).

ZUCCHINI FLAN

- 7 small zucchini (1 1/2 pounds total, 795¢), trimmed, unpeeled and cut into lengths to fit the feed tube
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 ounces (55g) imported Parmesan cheese, at room temperature
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) parsley leaves
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) chives
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) Feta cheese, quartered
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) oregano
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) oregano
- 1/4 cup (12 cl) oregano
- Freshly ground pepper

Medium Slicing Disc: Put the zucchini in the feed tube vertically and slice it, using medium pressure. Transfer it to a cooler, sprinkle it with salt and toss it. Let it drain for 30 minutes. Press the zucchini gently and pat it dry with paper towels.

Preheat the oven to 375°F (190°C) and adjust the rack to the middle level. Heat the oil in a large skillet and add the zucchini and steam it, shaking the pan occasionally, for 2 to 3 minutes or until it is just heated through. Transfer the zucchini to a buttered 8- by 1 1/2-inch (3.75 cm) round baking dish.

Shredding Disc: Shred the Parmesan cheese, using light pressure; reserve it. Metal Blade: Mince the parsley by turning the machine on and off, reserve it. Process the eggs for 45 seconds or until they thicken and become lemon colored. Add the reserved parsley and Parmesan cheese, Feta cheese and seasonings. Process the mixture by turning the machine on and off 7 or 8 times. Pour the mixture over the zucchini and bake the dish for 30 minutes, or until it is lightly browned.

OEUF CRESSONNIERE

(Poached Eggs with Watercress)

Serves 4

- 4 eggs
- Salt
- Vinegar
- 2 medium tomatoes
- 1 cup watercress, washed and with stems removed
- 1 cup cream
- Freshly ground pepper

Poach the eggs in simmering water to which you have added a pinch of salt and several tablespoons of vinegar. You may poach them ahead of time and keep them in cool water until you are ready to use them. Drop them briefly in simmering water to reheat.

Cut the tomatoes in half horizontally and scoop out the insides. Salt them and drain them for several minutes. Puree the watercress in a blender or food processor. Transfer it to a medium-sized saucepan, add the cream and salt, pepper, and nutmeg to taste, and reduce the mixture by one-third over moderate heat.

Place the hot poached eggs in the tomato shells, top them with the hot sauce, and serve immediately.

Finally, to quench the sweet tooth, are two dessert recipes featuring eggs. A jam-filled Soufflé Omelette and the traditional British favorite, Crème Brûlée. Both recipes are reproduced from Anabella Baker's Book of Elegant Cooking and Entertaining (Times Books).

SOUFFLÉ OMELETTE

Serves 2

- 4 eggs, separated
- 3 tbs. cold water
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. butter
- 2 tbs. black cherry jam, warmed

Beat egg yolks with the water, adding sugar. Beat whites until stiff, then pour beaten egg yolks over them, stirring gently until they are incorporated. Heat the omelette pan and add the butter. When it starts to brown, turn the heat down very low and pour in the eggs. Don't stir them, just wait until the omelette becomes puffy and small bubbles burst on the surface. Now spoon the jam over the omelette, fold it over and slide it on to a warm dish.

Serve with extra jam if you like, and cream. This dish has to be eaten immediately, once made.

CRÈME BRÛLÉE

Serves 6

- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1/2 vanilla pod
- 6 eggs
- 2 tbs. vanilla sugar or plain sugar

Superfine sugar for topping
Start several hours, or a day, in advance. Preheat the oven to 300°F. Heat cream in a small pan with vanilla pod. Stop just before it reaches boiling point and remove the pod (keep it for another time). Beat eggs in a bowl, add the sugar, and pour in the hot cream, beating steadily. Stand bowl over simmering water, making sure the bowl is above the water, and stir constantly until it has thickened just enough to lightly coat the back of a spoon. Remove from heat and pour into an ovenproof dish, or 6 custard cups. Put in the oven for 10 minutes, or 5 minutes for small dishes, to form a skin which prevents the sugar sinking into the crème. Remove and cool.

To make the topping: Spread an even layer of superfine sugar about 1/4 inch thick over the surface. This can now be brûlée, or burnt, by a number of different methods:

a Under the broiler: Heat thoroughly in advance to its highest possible setting. Place dish(es) under it, and turn to brown the sugar evenly.

b By salamander: These are round flat irons on a long-angled handle. Heat over a gas flame until almost red-hot, then move over the surface of the dish, holding it as close as possible without actually touching, until the sugar has melted and browned evenly.

c By blowtorch: Although this sounds alarming, it is surprisingly easy. Protect the edges of the dish(es) with foil, and simply play the flame over the surface for a few seconds until evenly browned.

Spices flavor food, history

By Antonia Allegra
Copley News Service

Many of the uses of spices have changed over the years, but the popularity of spices continues. In today's trend toward less salt, less sugar and less fat in our diets, spices often fill the void, offering delicious ways of enjoying natural foods.

Short and simple kitchen recipes for your files

Softened cheese in microwave

To soften cheese spread, place an 8-ounce room temperature jar of cheese in the microwave over heat, uncovered, at low 4 to 5 minutes. For a 5-ounce jar, heat, uncovered, at low 2 to 3 minutes.

Sausage appetizers make fine islands

Cut each of 8 bread slices into four triangles and toast. Combine 8 slices luncheon meat, chopped, with 1/4 cup ground corn flakes and 1/4 cup crushed pineapple. Spread mixture on toasted triangles and top with a ripe olive half. Makes 32 triangles.

Herbed pistachios colorful for spring

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in skillet. Add 1/4 teaspoon thyme, 1/4 tsp. crushed oregano, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1 cup shelled pistachios. Toss to coat. Sauté about 3 minutes or until pistachios are coated and crisp. Cool on paper towels.

Makes 1 cup.

Serve frozen fruit for quick dessert

Keep frozen fruits on hand for fast salad and dessert combinations. With the help of a microwave oven, a solid block of frozen fruit can be defrosted in minutes. For a 10-ounce package, defrost for 5 to 4 minutes and let fruit stand a minute or two to defrost completely.

Thaw vegetables before cooking

For most recipes frozen vegetables do not need to be thawed before cooking. Just use them straight from the package.

If the recipe calls for thawed frozen vegetables, remove vegetables from package and place in a shallow rimmed dish. Cover and store in refrigerator about 24 hours or until thawed.

To thaw in a microwave oven, place unwrapped frozen vegetables in shallow microwave-proof dish. Add 1 tablespoon water and thaw according to manufacturer's directions or cover and microwave in a pan.

To steam in pan, place 1 package (8 to 10 oz.) frozen vegetables or about 2 1/2 cups frozen vegetables in pan. Cover and steam until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 4 to 6 minutes. With a fork separate solid-pack vegetables after about 2 minutes.

Microwave salmon under plastic wrap

Place 1 (about 6 oz.) salmon steak in microwave-proof baking dish. Cover dish tightly with plastic wrap. Microwave at medium 1 1/2 to 2 minutes; rotate and microwave again halfway through cooking time. Drain excess juices. Cover tightly with plastic wrap; let stand 5 minutes.

Salmon should flake easily when tested with a fork at thickest part. Makes 1 serving.

Recipes ask baking or casserole dish

A "casserole" is a round or oval-shaped and often has a fitted cover. A "baking dish" is usually square or rectangular and is shallow. A "loaf dish" is rectangular with deep sides. Use waxed paper or vented plastic wrap when the recipe calls for a cover in a microwave oven.

Peel eggs after rolling them out

Peel hard-cooked eggs right after cooling for immediate use or refrigerate them in their shells in their cartons for later use. If planning to use the eggs right away, they are easier to peel right after they are cooled.

Hard-cooked eggs for later use or for snacks can be left in their shells, nature's own protective packaging. They'll keep the eggs practically sterile by preventing contact with bacteria. Hard-cooked eggs in their shells keep well about a week in the refrigerator.

For easy peeling, first crackle the shell all over by tapping it gently on a table or counter top. Then, to loosen the cracked shell, roll it back and forth between the hands. Since the egg's air cell is usually in the large end of the egg, start to peel there.

If the shell isn't coming off in ribbons of cracked pieces attached to the outer shell membrane, the egg may need more cracking and/or rolling. It may help, too, to hold the egg under running cold water or to dip it in a bowl of water. Just as the air cell helps to separate the egg from its shell, so does water.

Slicer can chop hard-cooked eggs

Cut hard-cooked eggs with a sharp knife or use an egg slicer or wedge. A slicer can be used to chop hard-cooked eggs, too. First, place the eggs horizontally in the slicer and slice. Then turn the egg so it is sitting vertically in the slicer and slice again.

Enjoy hard-cooked eggs in salads, sandwiches, casseroles and crepes, in creamed dishes and dips, on vegetables or crackers or in soups.

Hard-cook eggs that are not fresh

Use eggs that are about a week or two old for hard-cooking. Eggs can be difficult to peel if they are too fresh.

In eggs there are two membranes which lie between the shell and the egg white. In very fresh eggs, these membranes tend to cling tenaciously to both the shell and the white, making it more difficult to cleanly separate the two. As an egg ages, it loses carbon dioxide and water, not nutrients, and takes in air. The air taken in forms an air pocket between the membranes and this air cell helps to separate the shell from the white.

Store eggs in their cartons in the refrigerator about a week or so before hard-cooking for easier peeling.

Pierced egg may allow air escape

Although it is sometimes claimed that piercing the shells of eggs before hard cooking reduces the likelihood of cracking, the American Egg Board has found that piercing often produces hairline cracks. However, piercing may allow some air to escape and some water to seep into the egg during cooking. Since this helps to separate the egg from its shell, it may make peeling easier.

If piercing is preferable, gently use a clean, if possible sterilized pin, thumbtack or egg piercer to prick the large end of the egg. A very small hole is sufficient.

Single layer makes eggs cook evenly

When ready to boil eggs, choose a wide pan, two smaller pans or cook eggs in batches. Softer-centered eggs are found with fully hard-cooked eggs often due to poor heat circulation.

For best circulation of the hot water around the eggs, cook them in a single layer. When too many eggs are layered one on top of the other in a pan, they are less likely to turn out evenly cooked.

Chocolate Coconut Cheesecake Tarts: Delicious But Low-Cal

Attention dieters and diabetics! Just in time for holiday chocolate cravings, here's a tasty chocolate treat without too many fattening calories and without added sugar—luscious Chocolate-Coconut Cheesecake Tarts.

This is a "sensible" recipe from Equal® low-calorie sweetener, so each 1-1/2 inch tart has 2/3 fewer calories than a slice of traditional cheesecake. And this recipe is easy to make. Short cut cooks can even substitute prepared graham cracker tart shells for the homemade crust. (Note: A prepared crust has 159 calories.)

Even if your family isn't concerned about calories or too much sugar, they'll love the taste of these rich tarts. Tarts with plastic wrap and then colorful cellophane. Tie with a decorative ribbon and present to your sweetie with love.

CHOCOLATE-COCONUT CHEESECAKE TARTS

Crust: or 12 already prepared tart crusts
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup diet margarine, melted
Non-stick vegetable spray

Filling:
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup skim milk
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup skin milk
2 eggs
20 packets Equal® low-calorie sweetener
3 cups cottage cheese
1 package (8 ounces) low-calorie cream cheese cream cheese
3 packets (1 ounce each) unsweetened liquid chocolate
1-1/2 teaspoons coconut extract

Crust: Blend graham cracker crumbs and melted diet margarine. Press crumbs evenly over bottom and sides of 1 dozen 3-inch tartlet pans or 2 dozen 1-1/2 inch muffin pans lightly oiled with non-stick vegetable spray. (If using muffin pans line with muffin/cupcake paper liners.) Bake at 350°F for 15 minutes. Cool. Filling: Sprinkle gelatin over 1/4 cup milk to soften. In saucepan, blend together cornstarch, 1/2 cup milk and eggs. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly, until thickened, about 5 minutes. Stir in gelatin mixture until dissolved. Remove from heat, add Equal. In blender, puree cottage cheese until smooth. Add low-calorie cream cheese; blend thoroughly. Combine cheese mixture, egg mixture, liquid chocolate and coconut extract until smooth. Pour into crusts; spread evenly. Chill 4 to 6 hours or overnight.

Makes twelve 3-inch tartlets or 24 1-1/2 inch tartlets, 1 tart per serving.

Nourishing, elegant souffles

By Diane Savage
Copy News Service

Thought you couldn't make a souffle? Think again. While souffles look imposing, they're really not all that difficult to prepare. But there are a few pointers you'll want to remember to get perfect results.

Turn the oven to the heat called for in your recipe before doing anything. A souffle must be put in the oven as soon as all its ingredients are combined and it is placed in the baking dish — so a preheated oven is essential.

To get the highest volume when whipping egg whites, leave the eggs at room temperature for a day (even two) before you plan to use them. Not to worry: the eggs won't go bad. They remain completely sterile inside the shell.

The size of the baking dish is important, too, because a souffle will expand two to three times in volume while it is in the oven. Be sure to use the size your recipe recommends.

What makes a souffle rise? Air. All souffles consist of a thick base sauce (flour, butter, egg yolks, etc.), into which stiffly beaten egg whites are folded. When the egg whites are whipped, tiny air pockets form. The oven's heat causes the air in these pockets to expand like small balloons, making your souffle rise high and light.

Take care not to shake or move the souffle while it is baking. And remember that souffles have a tendency to sink in the middle soon after they reach the table. To prevent your towering creation from falling before it has made its grand impression (every souffler-maker's nightmare), have everyone seated at the table a few minutes before it emerges from the oven.

Today's vegetarian souffles are nourishing as well as impressive. Serve as a main course with a tossed green salad and perhaps a light white wine.

COTTAGE CHEESE SOUFFLE

6 tbsps. butter or margarine
¾ cup whole wheat pastry flour
1 cup milk
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. paprika
4 eggs, separated
2 cups. large-curd cottage cheese
3 tbsps. lemon juice

Preheat oven to 350 F. Melt butter in 1-quart saucepan. Add flour, stirring constantly, then gradually add milk, stirring to form smooth white sauce. Simmer sauce over very low heat 8 to 10 minutes, stirring often.

Meanwhile, beat egg yolks until light and frothy. Stir salt and paprika into white sauce and pour over egg yolks. Then add cottage cheese and lemon juice.

Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into cottage cheese mixture. Pour into heat-resistant glass 1½-quart souffle or baking dish, and bake in preheated oven for 1 hour. Serve immediately.

Serves 6.

FRESH MUSHROOM SOUFFLE

4 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ lb. fresh mushrooms
2 tbsps. grated onion
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
3 tbsps. whole wheat pastry flour

1 cup light cream
4 eggs, separated
¼ tsp. each salt and freshly ground black pepper

Preheat oven to 350 F. Wash mushrooms and pat dry, then slice thinly. In large frying pan, saute in 1 tablespoon butter for 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Add onion and lemon rind, stirring gently to mix. Remove from frying pan and set aside.

Melt remaining butter in saucepan over low heat, then stir in flour to form smooth paste. Stir in cream, little at a time, until sauce is thick and smooth. Remove from heat and beat in egg yolks, one at a time, blending well. Add salt, pepper and sauteed mushrooms, mixing thoroughly.

Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in gently. Turn mixture into lightly buttered 2-quart souffle or baking dish. Bake in preheated oven about 30 to 35 minutes, or until set. Serve immediately. Serves 3 to 4.

Health Fair coming to Granite City

A complete list of dates, times and locations of Health Fairs has been announced by Barbara Bennett, project director of Health Fair '85. There will be Health Fairs at 43 different locations across the bi-state metropolitan area and in outstate Missouri and Illinois, including St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

All sites will offer free screenings for height, weight, blood pressure, visual acuity and anemia for adults 35 and over. Most sites will offer two optional blood chemistry tests: for $10, a basic blood chemistry test requiring 4-10 hours of fasting; for $15, the basic test plus a coronary risk profile requiring a 12-hour fast. Fasting means not eating or drinking anything except water, black coffee or clear tea. Participants should continue to take their normal medications. Diabetics should follow normal therapy and should not fast.

Results of the blood chemistry analysis will be mailed to each participant six to eight weeks after Health Fair Week. The results will be accompanied by an informative pamphlet explaining the components of the analysis.

The sixth annual Health Fair Week is sponsored by the General

American Life Insurance Co., the American Red Cross (St. Louis Bi-State Chapter), and KSDK-Channel 5 in conjunction with the National Health Screening Council for Volunteer Organizations Inc. (NHSCVO). The purpose of this event is to provide an opportunity for participants to learn more about their bodies and to motivate healthy personal lifestyle choices and appropriate medical evaluation.

Health Fair '85 sites include: St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, April 24.

Area firms back clean-up drive

Lacey Randolph and Carl Baczanas, subcommittee chairmen of the Chamber of Commerce Community Betterment Committee, have announced that several area businesses will be participating in the 1985 community clean-up campaign.

The Chamber is encouraging all businesses to take an objective look at their facilities, note areas which need attention, and set aside the week following April 13 to make improvements.

Randolph noted, "Clean-up projects can be as simple as the removal of trash and rubble from the perimeter of a business or as complex as landscaping and painting projects."

American Steel Foundries has begun a week-long program to be followed by groundskeeping and grasscutting with a special effort during Clean-Up Week to remove rubbish from fence lines and areas within the plant. Granite City Steel has committed large sums of money for on-going programs of beautification throughout the year.

Nestle will be policing its plant site and adjacent Emerson School property and gearing up for spring and summer groundskeeping programs.

Consolidated Aluminum has proposed tree plantings and repainting of exterior portions of plant buildings in addition to a general spring cleaning of facility property.

Jim Pennekamp, Chamber executive, said the Chamber's annual clean-up campaign is a project in which all segments, including local governments, residents and businesses, work together to improve the quality of life and image of the Quad-City area.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Recently a woman came to this office who was charged with Driving Under The Influence (DUI). She was arrested after an automobile accident when the police officer detected alcohol on her breath. He asked her if she wanted to take the breathalyzer test, and she refused. At no time did the arresting officer warn the defendant of the consequences of refusing to take the test.

Illinois law provides that if a person is requested to submit to the breathalyzer test, he shall be warned by the law enforcement officer that a refusal to take the test will result in a suspension of the person's driver's license for six months on the first refusal and for twelve months on each subsequent refusal. Illinois statutes do not provide, however, what penalty will be imposed if the officer fails to warn the driver. Furthermore, the law provides that this question of whether the driver was warned is not to be an issue at the subsequent hearing.

If the officer is to warn of the consequences of a refusal but the issue is not to be raised at the breathalyzer hearing, is this not a contradiction? The woman in our example complained that she was not knowledgeable of the law and was not aware that she would lose her license if she refused the breathalyzer. She felt the policeman should be required to advise her of the significant consequences if she refused the test.

In a 1984 case, an Illinois Appellate Court attempted to clarify the policeman's responsibility in these situations. This was another case where the driver refused the test with no apparent advance warning from the policeman as to the serious consequences. The Appellate Court held that due process does not require the State to prove that the driver was warned that he could lose his driver's license if he refused the breathalyzer. The Court went on to state that it is highly advisable for the officer to warn the driver, but the policeman does not have to establish at the hearing that this warning was given.

In most situations one should submit to the breathalyzer test. The question asked here is whether you can escape the consequences of a breathalyzer refusal if you were not warned. In light of this case, one should not count on the State being required to prove that the warning was given.

Warriors continue skid; lose to East's Lancers

By GREGG OCHOA

ST. LOUIS — The Granite City High School baseball team almost dodged a bullet Thursday, but in the end the Warriors shot themselves in the foot.

Granite City continued its skid, dropping their third straight game, 4-3 to Belleville East. It was the Southwest Conference opener for the Warriors.

After stranding runners in both the first and fourth innings, the Lancers (2-1) rallied for two runs in the sixth. Then, reliever Jim Sinovic shut the door in the seventh with the help of a good running catch by left fielder Kevin Hagarty.

Hagarty, a junior, was an unlikely hero for Belleville East.

His catch in left-center field robbed the Warriors' Shane Cole of a sure double. If the ball falls in, Steve Davis, who had reached on an infield hit, would have scored the tying run.

"He has been an infielder for us the past two years," East Coach Larry Patton said of Hagarty.

"In outfield practice we noticed that he had as good of fundamentals as anyone. So, we decided to put him out there. Today, it turned out to be a good move."

Hagarty was also 3-for-3 and singled in Rick Schroeder with the winning run after two were out in the sixth.

Trailing 3-2, East started the rally with a field hit by Rick Lockwood, who relieved starter John McPherson in the fourth.

Brian Richter singled, but Cole gunned down Lockwood trying to go to third. Schroeder doubled to left to tie the game and Hagarty singled to center for the game-winner.

Granite City Coach Bob Stegemeier admitted afterwards that he didn't want to pitch to Hagarty, who had singled and doubled his two previous times at bat.

"I wanted to throw him some junk and try to get him to lunge," Stegemeier said. "It was missed communications between myself and the catcher. It wasn't his fault, just bad coaching."

Still, the Warriors' feeble bats continued to plague Granite City (4-3, 0-1 in conference play).

The Warriors had just four hits. Other balls were hit hard, but right at somebody.

"We're not bunting our hits," Stegemeier said. "Our hitters were unaggressive. And, when we do hit the ball hard somebody, makes a great play."

The Warriors have made a drastic about-face since the beginning of the season. In their first four games, Granite City had 38 hits. In the next two contests, the Warriors banged out 13 hits, but issued 22 walks in losing to Cahokia and Hillsboro.

BELLEVILLE EAST: Meekling 2B, Sinovic 1B, Lockwood 1B, Richter 1B, Schroeder 2B, RBI: Hagarty 2-1B, 2B, RBI: Rus RBL, WP-Lockwood, 3-in. SO-2, BB-0, SV-Sinovic.

Against East, Granite City didn't walk a batter, but all four hits were singles.

"I have no idea what's happened to our ball club," Stegemeier said. "Our hitters have all changed their style. They are fast with the shoulder and slow with the bat and you can't hit like that."

Also, East scored two unearned runs in the second inning — one on a ground out and another on an infield error.

"Every unearned run we give up or every error we make just kills us," Stegemeier said.

"It looks like we are waiting for ways to lose. We just don't have the killer instinct."

The Warriors were also stymied by two inning-ending double plays which killed potential big innings.

The first one occurred in the second inning after Granite City had went ahead 2-0 and threatened to break the game open.

Randy Burgess singled and John Konkovich was hit on the end of the batting helmet to start the inning.

First baseman Pat Cathey reached when East's Todd Blomberg misplayed a grounder to load the bases.

Pitcher Eric Gray, who went the distance and was tagged with the loss, reached when Schroeder let a grounder roll under his glove, allowing Burgess to score. After Bill Moore popped out, Kurt Hylla walked, scoring Konkovich. However, Steve Davis bounced into a double play.

Granite City regained the lead in the fourth. Gray reached on another error and Moore moved pinch runner Fred Becker to second with a sacrifice. Becker swiped third and scooted home when catcher Bob Sweet threw wildly into left field.

A single by Hylla and walks to Davis and Jim Chomko loaded the bases. Lockwood entered the game and got Cole to bounce back to the mound. Hylla was forced at home and Sweet threw to first to retire Cole.

"Neither one of those balls were hit hard enough to warrant double plays," Stegemeier lamented. "That was part of our unaggressiveness at home plate."

The Warriors bats were silent as Lockwood retired the side in both the fifth and sixth.

In the seventh, Davis reached on an infield hit and went to second on a ground out. Hagarty made the catch on Cole's drive. Burgess was walked intentionally, but Konkovich bounced to the first baseman to end the game.

"This win is great for us," Patton said. "We played only one senior and he pinch ran. This will do a world of good for our confidence."

Gray, a junior, pitched well enough to win. He fanned five and didn't walk a batter and appeared to have little problems going into the sixth.

SPECIAL DELIVERY. The Warriors' Eric Gray delivers a pitch home against Belleville East, Thursday at Lancer Field. Despite being tagged for the loss, Gray struck out five and walked none. Still, the Warriors lost 4-3 in its Southwest Conference opener.

Sinovic recorded the save after getting Konkovich to bounce out in the seventh with runners on first and second.

The Warriors, however, had their opportunities. East pitchers yielded six walks and hit one batter. East also committed three errors. Granite City was just as generous. But the Warriors could manage just one hit per any single inning.

On a positive note, Hylla kept up his torrid pace. He was hitting right around the .800 mark and had one of the four safeties. Chomko, Davis and Burgess got the other hits.

The Warriors have busy week ahead of them with five games in five days. Granite City's next outing is at Collinsville on Monday. Game time is at 4 p.m.

Trittschuh, Cougars to go against soccer Nationals

EDWARDSVILLE — When the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville soccer team hosts the United States National Team in an exhibition match later this month, the Cougars' starting lineup will feature Granite City product Steve Trittschuh.

The exhibiting outing, which is one of a handful the U.S. team will play this month and early next month, is scheduled to be against Cougar Field on Sunday, April 14, at 7 p.m.

Trittschuh, who will begin his third year for the Cougars this fall after graduating from North High School, started all 19 games in the backfield for the Cougars last season, recording four goals and five assists for 13 points. Trittschuh's point total was fourth best on the team, and his four goals scored tied him for third place on a balanced Cougar attack. For his efforts, Trittschuh was selected to the NCAA All-Midwest Regional Team.

The U.S. team, which features some of the top professional and amateur players in the country, is preparing for a phase II World Cup qualifying match against Trinidad

May 15 at Busch Stadium in St. Louis. The national team is attempting to become the first U.S. squad since 1950 to reach the 24-team World Cup finals, which will be held next year in Mexico.

Tickets for the SIUE match, which can be purchased at the University Center and the Vandalia Center, are priced at $4 in advance for adults and $2 in advance for students with a valid ID, and children under 18. All tickets purchased at the gate will be $5. Tickets can also be purchased at the SIUE office on Lindell Blvd. in St. Louis; Twellman's Just For Kicks (Bridgeton and Jamestown locations); Soccer For Fun in Granite City; and the Soccer Dome in Webster Groves.

St. Louis Cards game begins today

This week, the Granite City Press-Record/Journal begins a season-long St. Louis Baseball Cardinals ticket contest.

Called the Game of the Week, Press-Record/Journal will, in its Sunday issue, announce a baseball game that its readers are invited to guess the outcome. Contestants should include the game score, the team they think will win, (i.e. Cards 5, Mets 4) their name, address and telephone number. Entries can be mailed or brought to the office in person. Absolutely no entries will be accepted after the Thursday noon deadline. In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner.

Late in the week, the winner will be notified and a prize announcing the winner will appear in the following Sunday's Press-Record/Journal.

Press-Record/Journal employees and their immediate families are not eligible.

'Snakebit' Warriors now 0-3

By JOE THOMPSON

Staff Writer

GRANITE CITY — On Wednesday and Thursday of last week, the Granite City High girls softball team had to contend with:

(1) A controversial umpire's decision that kept an opposing team's winning rally alive.

(2) A strong wind which grabbed a hold of a fly ball by an opposing hitter. Watch it now. The ball drifts, drifts... oops. It tips the glove of a Warrior player who had run several feet trying to keep pace but ended up a half-step short. The ball falls harmlessly to the ground. Not so harmless is the run that scores to tie the game and the winning run that follows shortly after.

"Maybe we're snakebit," offers Granite City High coach Jim Davis. "I don't know."

One thing he does know. In losing to Althoff which was aided by a critical umpire's ruling last Wednesday to Mascoutah and Mother Nature on Thursday, the Warriors faced two of the top four teams in the area.

That's another thing Davis reminded his players after their 9-3 loss to Mascoutah. The Warriors are 0-3. But, look who they've played and count up the snake bites.

"We'll just have to keep plugging along," Davis said.

The Warriors were doing just fine against Mascoutah, unbeaten at 0-2. The Indians roughed up Warrior starting pitcher Amy Moss for two runs in the first, but Granite City struck plate dirt three times in the second to take the lead.

Keri Holtkamp started the Warrior rumble with a ground single to center off Indiana hurler Debbie Friess. Kim Armour, the Warrior's designated hitter, grounded out. But catcher Kim Corey kept the rally alive by beating out a ground ball to the shortstop for a hit.

First baseman Jill Werth sacrificed Armour and Corey into scoring position. Yes, the next batter, was struck by a pitch to load the bases.

The Warriors' Anne Pusey, Kathy Hutchings and Karen Sykes all followed with walks to force in the three runs.

Suffice to say, the Warriors did not prosper long with their 3-2 lead. In what was the decisive inning of the contest, the Indians retook the lead in the top of the fourth and did so without benefit of a basehit.

Kim Gordon started the Indians' shenanigans. Gordon reached base when Corey was unable to flag down a pitch Gordon swung at and missed for strike three.

Gordon attempted to steal second base a few pitches later. When shortstop Hutchings and second baseman Holtkamp were late in covering the base, Corey's throw skipped into center field.

Gordon proceeded to third base, but looked like she would be thrown out by Sykes, who delivered the ball to third baseman Pusey well ahead of the runner. Gordon, however, kicked the ball free. Safe.

Madeline Robbs, the Indians' clean-up hitter who terrorized the Warriors with two doubles and a triple, was the next batter. She struck what appeared to be her most insignificant blow of the night, lifting a high pop fly into left field.

But the wind, which kicked up such a gust earlier the contest had to be briefly halted, stirred once again. The ensuing gust brought the ball back toward the infield where left fielder Leigh Ann Fanning, racing in, just missed connections. When the ball fell safely, Gordon scored. Two batters later, Robbs also scored, and the Indians once again surged ahead. The Warriors never again threatened.

"A routine out," said Davis, if not for the wind.

Yoss hurried one more frame before concern over her pitching arm led Davis to call on Michelle Morgan, who finished the contest.

The Warriors looked strong in the field, with Pusey and Hutchings sweeping clean potential hits at their respective positions. Michelle Stagg came through with a couple of nice plays in right field.

Davis' one big concern was in the lumber department. "We've got to start hitting," he said.

The Warriors collected just four hits, including Sykes' pinch single. Elaine Reinegal's punt hit single in the seventh was the hardest hit.

Of course, the Warriors hit the ball hard on other occasions. Hutchings lined a shot to centerfield in the first inning. Armour laced a right field in the sixth.

"On the nose..." said Davis of the two blows.

You guessed it, both were caught. Davis was wondering when the snake would stop biting.

Jayvee kickers proving GC and soccer synonymous

There aren't many things that go together like a tall glass of milk and chocolate cake, denim and tennis shoes, and Robert Redford and Paul Newman.

Now, play matchmaker with Granite City. The obvious is Granite City and steel. That's a good one. Try Granite City again. How about Granite City and... soccer.

Hey, that's a real good one. Almost as good as watching a Redford and Newman movie in your sneakers and jeans while eating German chocolate cake and pouring down an ice-cold 12-ounce glass of milk.

Soccer in Granite City is bigger than Granite City itself. With thousands of youth and adults alike competing, Granite City's soccer boom through the years has spread to Mitchell, Madison and Collinsville. The whole area is afire with soccer.

This is not to say that Granite City started the soccer boom, but seeing its success, other communities wasted little time in jumping on the soccer bandwagon.

Granite City turned yet another page in its soccer history recently as the high school fielded its first girls' team this spring. And, what a team it is.

But, really, knowing the soccer background in this city, what other kind of team could it foster other than a very successful one.

Now four games into their season, the varsity Warriors are 3-1 while the Jayvees are a remarkable 4-0.

What makes the Jayvees so remarkable is their statistics. Scoring 21 goals in their first four games, the junior varsity kickers have tallied those goals by way of 11 different people.

"We've got 25 or 26 very good people. Anyone of them are capable of scoring goals," explained Haig Nighossian, Jayvee coach. "We're pretty balanced. I can substitute freely without sacrificing anything. We've got that much talent."

As lethal as the girls' offense is, its defense has amassed a statistic which is even more mind-boggling.

Through four games, 280 minutes of play, the Jayvee Warriors' defense has yet to yield not only a goal, but a shot on that goal.

Not one!

Anchored in goal by either Mary DeRuntz or Alice Loftus, the Warriors have been as stubborn on defense as humbly possible.

Aiding the Warriors' goalkeepers are backs Ellen Moss, Nancy Modica, Tammy Wroten, Susan Schaus, Michelle Stewart and Maria Toeniskoetter.

In the Spotlight

By Alan L. Gerstenecker
Executive Sports Editor

Playing a 4-2-4 formation, the Jayvee's midfielders consist of Ann Krsytapa, Shelly Browning, Cindy Bridick, Melody Witt, Christy York and Robin Biggs.

Granite City's forward line and those sharing in those 21 goals include Susan Conkovich, Becky Papa, Heather Crane, Sheila Noel, Mary Flannigan, Laura Goodman, Deena Scarborough, Marti Mendoza and Jeanetta Teachener. Krsytapa is the 11th Warrior to share in the 21 goals, doing so from her midfielder's position.

Why are the girls so prolific on defense? Nighossian supplied the answer.

"I'm a defensive coach. I played defense in college and that's what I know," Nighossian said. "My philosophy is simple. If you don't let the other team score, they're not going to beat you. That, and I teach a winning attitude. If you think you're going to win, that's a big part of it."

Without a doubt.

With 3-0, 9-0, 7-0 and 2-0 victories over Pattonville, Ritenour, McCluer and Mehlville in their most recent and that's what I know," Nighossian said. "My philosophy is simple. If you don't let the other team score, they're not going to beat you. That, and I teach a winning attitude. If you think you're going to win, that's a big part of it."

Their next game slated on Wednesday, the kickers will meet McCluer, Hazelwood East on Friday and then near-rival Collinsville on Saturday, April 20. Collinsville, which has had girls soccer for two years, is always a soccer power to be reckoned with, and as for McCluer and Hazelwood East, Nighossian also expects those to be difficult games.

"We really know Collinsville is going to be tough, and McCluer has already beaten them 3-2 last week, so they're going to be tough also. And, Hazelwood East should be another test," Nighossian said.

Judging by their efforts so far, the Warriors should be able to handle McCluer, and Hazelwood East, and Collinsville, and...

Vashon whips Venice hurlers

ST. LOUIS — The Venice High School baseball team was blanked 8-0 by Vashon, a member of the Public High League of St. Louis, Wednesday at Fairground Park.

It was the season opener for the Red Devils, who are trying to improve over last year's 2-10 record.

Vashon limited Venice to just two base hits — singles by Wilfred Wigfall and Tyrone Treachway. The Red Devils drew five walks, but left a total of seven runners on base.

"We have a good defensive team," said Venice coach Clinton Harris. "We just have to work extremely hard on our hitting."

"We have a lot of freshman out," Harris said. "This is a rebuilding year for us."

Vashon scored two runs in both the second and third innings. The Wolverines added a single run in the fourth and fifth — three more times in the sixth inning.

Sophomore Hillman Allen was the winning pitcher, striking out 16 and going the distance. Reginald Coleman and Orlando Johnson paced Vashon, each going 2-for-3 and collecting 2 RBIs.

"I think we had the experience on them," said Vashon Coach Ron Newell. "It's always a little difficult the first time you go out and get your feet wet."

"However, I was really pleased with their pitcher (Love). He did a fine job, despite giving up eight runs. He tired a little, but I think he'll win some games for them," Newell added.

Vashon, which will play the Red Devils again at Venice later in the season, improved to 5-2 on the year.

The Red Devils (0-1) are idle until Monday when the host Madison Gametime is at 4 p.m.

SIUE downs UMMSL, Robertson shines

By AL BARNES
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Early in a season, a baseball player can see his batting average plunge dishearteningly downward or zoom dramatically upwards.

Granite City's Mike Robertson, infielder-outfielder for the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Cougars who is normally a .325 hitter, was off early to a dismal start in the Cougars' team hitting parade.

But, in the latest SIUE game against the visiting University of Missouri in St. Louis Rivermen, the Cougars avenged an earlier (6-7) loss by defeating UMMSL 7-4. The Cougars' victory Wednesday upped their record to 9-5 while UMMSL fell to 13-11.

Coming on like gangbusters at the plate against UMMSL was SIUE's Robertson, who blasted out four hits in five trips to the plate against the Rivermen, and in the process zoomed upwards his hitting average to .325. A gain of 60 points in just one game.

To date in the Cougars' 9-5 season, Robertson is among team leaders in runs, batted in department with seven, including two game-winners. RBI's, three doubles, three home runs and an amazing five stolen bases in five attempts.

Like most good batters though, Robertson has whiffed nine times.

Says SIUE head coach, Gary (Bo) Collins, "Mike will win us a lot of games this season. He's a tough out."

Other local players, Collinsville's Pete Delkus, hurled brilliantly in relief of the Cougars' starter against UMMSL. Tony Duenas and gained his third victory in three games.

Delkus came in at the top of the fifth with SIUE holding on grimly to a 5-4 lead and hurled five scoreless innings to gain the triumph. He was a little tentative in the fifth frame as he faced six hitters and gave up a trio of hits.

He retired the side in order in the four following innings. He fanned five.

Rain permitting, the Cougars will return to the schedule Wednesday, April 10, with a double-header against Elmhurst College starting at 1 p.m. The next day, the Cougars will get the chance to avenge a 2-1 rain-shortened loss to SIU-Carbondale in a 3 p.m. contest.

BREAKING IT UP. Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville's Tony Duenas attempts to slide through University of Missouri's (UMMSL) second baseman Scott Lange during Thursday's game at Cougar Field. Duenas was successful in breaking up the twin-killing as were the Cougars in their attempt to avenge an earlier loss to the Rivermen.

Deer hunters have until April 30 to gain permits

SPRINGFIELD — Deer permit application forms for the 1985 season are now available, according to Conservation Director Michael Witte. People who applied for a permit last year should soon be receiving a pre-printed application in the mail, he added.

The 1985 Illinois firearm deer season will extend over two weekends: Nov. 15-17, and Dec. 13-15. Application forms will be accepted April 1 through April 30 for the computerized lottery which will be held after the applications are processed.

Application forms for firearm and or archery permits may be picked up at the DCC's Permit Office, 524 S. Second St., Springfield, or the DCC regional offices in Alton, Benton, Sterling, Spring Grove, Champaign, and at the Chicago office, State of Illinois Building, 100 W. Randolph St. Firearm deer hunting is allowed in all counties except Cook, DuPage,

Outdoors

Kane and Lake, Witte said. Counties are allocated via the lottery system.

Witte reminded hunters that firearm permit applications must be postmarked before midnight, April 30 to qualify.

Persons applying for a permit must enclose an individual $15 personal check or money order payable to the Department of Conservation, along with the appropriate 1985 application form.

Hunters applying as a group, must complete all applications identically. The first and second county choices or hunt areas must be the same for all hunters in the group or the entire group will be rejected, Witte said. The group leader should be the same on each application form.

Illinois landowners who own 40 acres or more and tenants who rent 40 acres or more of farmland may apply for free or paid landowner tenant deer hunting permits, he said. Applicants for these special permits must document their tenancy or ownership.

Resident landowners and their immediate family residing in the same household must prove ownership by submitting a photo copy of a property deed, contract-for-deed or the most recent real estate tax statement.

Tenants must prove that they rent 40 acres or more of farmland by submitting copies of an IRS Schedule F form from last year, or documenting participation in agricultural programs such as Agricultural Stabilization or Conservation Service programs.

The free landowner tenant permit is issued at no cost and entitles the holder to hunt the owned or rented land only.

NRA's 'Big Game' program

WASHINGTON — Hunters having bagged that once in a lifetime North American big game animal can be recognized for their achievement through the National Rifle Association's Big Game Hunter Awards program.

NRA offers 14 award categories in four hunting methods: modern firearms (handguns and long guns); muzzleloading firearms; and bows. Measurements must meet NRA minimum standards as detailed in the NRA Big Game Hunter Awards brochure available from NRA's Hunter Services Division.

Entries from the Big Game Hunting Award program which qualify for the Leatherstocking Awards are automatically entered. Qualifications include the game meeting Boone and Crockett's Records of North American Big Game measurements and it must be taken in the preceding calendar year.

Further information and entry forms on both the Big Game Hunter Awards and the Leatherstocking Awards contest are available from NRA's Hunter Services Division, 1600 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 or phone (202) 628-6240.

DOC sets new crappie limits

Anglers will be limited to taking 20 crappie per day at Carlyle Lake, and all crappie must be a minimum of nine inches in length, according to a new Department of Conservation regulation which went into effect recently.

During the course of the investigation, conducted by reservoir biologists Harry Wright and Larry Cruse, small mesh trap nets were set in nine parts of the lake and more than 2,800 crappie were measured, weighed and had scale samples removed. The data showed the crappie population has been experiencing a highly variable reproductive success, low population density and poor age structure. The length and creel limits were recommended to correct these deficiencies.

"Crappie fishing at Carlyle Lake has had a history of good and bad years," Conlin said. "In 1972, during the boom fishing period which occurs after a reservoir is filled, a slow decline began to be noticeable. This decline was ac-
